INTRODUCTION

The Illinois Historic Preservation Agency and the Illinois State Historical Society are pleased to publish this guide to free and inexpensive materials about Illinois. This publication was originally produced in 1982 by the Illinois State Board of Education.

In the eight years that have elapsed since then much has changed. This booklet was prepared to reflect those changes and to give Illinois teachers, as well as other interested individuals, current contacts in various governmental agencies.

We are grateful to Ann Pictor of the State Board of Education for the original 1982 listing and to Olive S. Foster, former State Historian and Executive Director of the Illinois State Historical Society, for the current publication.

The Illinois Historic Preservation Agency and the Illinois State Historical Society welcome this opportunity to make this updated booklet available free of charge to those attending the 1990 Illinois Council for the Social Studies conference "Illinois: A Learning Laboratory." In this way we can continue the Society's ninety-one-year-old tradition of disseminating materials about Illinois.

Bloomington

David Davis Mansion State Historic Site

Built for United States Supreme Court Judge David Davis in 1872, this stunning example of mid-Victorian architecture is a model of the style and taste of the time. "Clover Lawn" as the Davis family called it, is now a state-owned historic site. The house features a central heating system, original gas lighting fixtures, gravity-fed plumbing, and three bathrooms. It is considered the prototype of the modern home. The polished wood and decorative paint detailing reflect the social position enjoyed by Judge Davis and his family.

The restoration of the mansion and its grounds is nearing completion. Interpretive themes featured during tours and outreach programs will include post-Civil War mechanical systems, health and sanitation, servant life, women's studies, mid-Victorian architecture and decorative arts, and the judge's political life. Educational outreach programs and tour information are available on request.

VIDEOTAPES (LOAN)

Archaeology

Building on the Past

This program shows how the construction of I-55 had to coexist with the scientific examination of important sites such as Cahokia Mounds.

Digging to the Past

Three important archaeological "digs" sponsored by the Illinois Department of Conservation are featured: Cahokia Mounds, Fort de Chartres, and Modoc Site.

Ecology/Environment

Baking Illinois

Program topics include general characteristics of Illinois, its agriculture, its fish and wildlife, its climate, and its water and geological resources.

Big River of the Heartland

The program explores the Mississippi River from St. Paul to St. Louis and discusses the importance of the river in terms of its wildlife and economic stability.

Bread Basket or Dustbowl: The Future of Illinois Farmland

This documentary calls attention to the loss of Illinois' topsoil.

Illinois Groundwater: Our Invisible Resource

This presentation reviews Illinois' water resources, demonstrates threats to our groundwater, and describes methods to protect it.

Seven Hundredths of One Percent

Program addresses the disappearance of the Land of Lincoln's natural heritage and the efforts being made to protect the few areas that remain.

Southern Illinois: Goose Capital of the World

This program addresses the Illinois Department of Conservation's role in managing the huge flocks of geese that migrate to southern Illinois.

Time-Pieces

A cooperative production of the Illinois State Museum and the Illinois State Board of Education, the videotape details two scientific disciplines that can be used to chart climate patterns: palynology (fossil pollen grain analysis) and dendrochronology (tree ring analysis).

Government

Framework Series

There are fourteen tapes, each fourteen minutes long, in this series. Extensively visualized with motion picture film, slides, and graphic art, the series helps to explain the Illinois 1970 Constitution and the primary functions of our state government.

Voting Is Not a Spectator Sport

Program identifies and discusses the major requirements for voting and the three methods of voting in Illinois: paper ballots, punch card ballots, and voting machines.

History

A Capitol Idea

Historical photographs and modern film footage show how and why the present Illinois State Capitol was constructed in Springfield. In addition the narration provides comparisons between the "new" State House and the old Capitol of Lincoln's time.

A Century of Progress

Historic photographs and film identify major events that affected Illinois education. On-location videotape was used to re-create views of early Illinois schools and the lifestyles followed by pupils, parents, and teachers.

Chicago Now

Sponsored by Talman Federal Savings and Loan Association, it records the warmth and diversity of the state's largest city.

Heritage Days in Illinois

Program looks at eight weekend events designed to highlight the rich history of Illinois through special events that take place at state parks.

A Look at Lincoln

Drawn from Abraham Lincoln's own writings, this program re-creates parts of three periods of his life: as storekeeper and lawyer, as political campaigner, and as president of the United States.

A New Salem Season

Program shows how a theater group produced "Your Obedient Servant, A. Lincoln" and presents selected scenes from it.

A Part of This

The storyline follows human interaction with our early environment and shows the struggle that shaped our state.
